About Sodonra Group

Sodonra Group brings together businesses in healthcare, consumer commerce, and real estate with a shared commitment to building lasting value. Each business serves a distinct market, yet all are guided by the same principles: understand the people we serve, operate responsibly, and make decisions with the future in mind.

Our perspective is shaped by hands-on experience across different industries. Through The Favour Dental, we understand the importance of trust, professional care, and long-term relationships. Through South Po, we connect customers with practical products for everyday life. Through Elio Home, we pursue real estate opportunities where thoughtful planning and execution can enhance the value and use of a property.

Together, these businesses give Sodonra a broad view of how value is created—from the quality of a patient's experience to the products customers rely on and the places where people live and work. We believe that careful attention to these fundamentals can create opportunities for sustainable growth over time.

Sodonra's role is to provide a clear strategic perspective while respecting the distinct responsibilities of each business. We focus on disciplined planning, financial accountability, and the thoughtful allocation of resources. Each entity retains its own operating and financial responsibilities, and The Favour Dental remains a separate dentist-owned professional practice under the direction of its licensed professionals.

For investors and partners, Sodonra represents a platform with interests across several areas of the economy and a practical approach to growth. We welcome opportunities to work with those who share our commitment to sound execution, responsible stewardship, and long-term value creation.

Our Business Philosophy

Sodonra Group's approach is grounded in disciplined planning, responsible stewardship, and attention to long-term value. We believe each business should be evaluated on its own performance, opportunities, and risks, while benefiting from a clear group-level perspective on strategy and capital allocation.

The practice provides general and advanced dental services, including restorative care, root canal treatment, dental implants, orthodontic treatment, and surgical procedures. Its offering includes packaging supplies, tapes, masks, garden gloves, and other daily-use essentials, serving customers who value convenience and dependable product choices.

The business sources and merchandises products for online retail, reaching customers through Amazon, eBay, and its own Shopify store, southpo.net. Its product presentation, selection, and sales channels are designed to make everyday supplies accessible to both individual and business customers.

As Sodonra's commerce business, South Po brings experience in product selection, online merchandising, and marketplace operations. Its growth depends on disciplined sourcing, customer experience, product demand, and the management of costs and margins across its sales channels.

Elio Home LLC | Real Estate

Elio Home LLC is the real estate business associated with Sodonra Group. Rooted in Houston, its focus includes real estate investment, renovation, and development, with an emphasis on identifying opportunities where thoughtful design and purposeful improvements can enhance a property's utility and appeal.

Its approach begins with an assessment of the property, location, existing condition, and potential. Planning then brings together design, project scope, budget, and execution considerations to guide decisions for each asset. Opportunities may involve improving an existing property, repositioning it, or developing it for a new use, depending on the project.

Current residential projects include properties on Stebbins Drive and Haddington Drive in Houston, where renovation and expansion plans seek to improve living space and architectural character. As Sodonra's real estate business, Elio contributes a project-based perspective on investment, property improvement, and long-term value creation.
